Cboe was the big winner in Financial News's Trading & Tech Awards last night, picking up three gongs, including the coveted Exchange Group of the Year.

The 21st annual Excellence in Trading & Tech Awards were announced at a black-tie dinner at One Marylebone in London. The winners were voted on by a panel of independent judges and editorial staff (see details below).

Cboe's European head Natan Tiefenbrun was named Industry Personality of the Year, in recognition of the work he has done to drive the exchange group's continued growth in the region since taking over the role a year ago.

He is also a well-known voice in the industry and has been particularly outspoken about the need for an overhaul of European equities markets and the creation of a consolidated tape.

Cboe's block trading service, BIDS, won Best Equities Trading Solution.

Xavier Rolet, former head of the London Stock Exchange Group, was the guest speaker for the event. He gave his thoughts on the role of markets and new developments that could have a big impact in the future.

Euronext’s CEO Stéphane Boujnah received the Outstanding Contribution Award, which is chosen by the editorial team, for work he has done to create a pan-European exchange group, now with seven trading venues and four central securities depositories across the region.

He has also positioned it to benefit from the movement of business to the European Union in the wake of Brexit. It is currently moving its clearing activities from the London Stock Exchange’s LCH onto its own Italian platform.

Another multiple winner was State Street, which won Securities Services Provider of the Year for the second year running, although BNY Mellon was a very close second. State Street also picked up Best Foreign Exchange Trading Platform for FX Connect, which is part of its GlobalLink suite of e-trading platforms.

Tradeweb won Best Fixed Income Trading Platform, a title it has held onto for several consecutive years. It also came out top in a new category: Best OTC Trading Platform.

For the second year running FlexTrade jointly won the fintech innovation category for a collaboration with other organisations. This time, for Europe's first bilateral fixed income trade between JPMorgan and UBS Asset Management that was executed via FlexTrade’s execution management system.
